Uhden selected as Technical Services Manager

Wyoming Department of Agriculture Director John Etchepare is pleased to announce that Hank Uhden has taken over the position of Manager of the Technical Services Division.

Uhden has been employed with the department for over 22 years and was previously a supervisor in the division.

As manager of Technical Services, Uhden is responsible for the division employees, as well as program management including budgeting and issue resolution.

"I am humbled by the opportunity to serve and work for such a dynamic group of employees," Uhden said. "Our main focus is to bring the division into the 21st century, evaluate our safety protocols, look at how our budgets are supplemented and locate new funding."

The Technical Services Division includes programs in the areas of weights and measures, weed and pest, plant industry, pesticides, and rodents/predators. Uhden hopes to bring the division into an online paperless atmosphere to better serve Wyoming citizens and the department.

In his free time, Uhden enjoys downhill skiing and woodworking. He is also a private pilot.
